

A New Revolutionizing Weaning Product and Method

Reluctant to start the weaning process? Wanting a better weaning method? Limited on space?

A new product has just been released that simplifies the weaning a foal. The owner of Horsing Around, LLC (Linda Bateman) was looking for a more humane method of weaning a foal without separating the animals. She did not want to break the mare/foal bond at the same time as she decreased and eventually stopped the nursing process.

Linda studied the natural way a mare moves with her foal. She looked for the optimum time to start the weaning process. She concluded that each mare/foal combination is unique, and there are a number determining factors that only the animal owner or caregiver can assess. Personal observation of the animals well being and the young animals' maturity are major factors. How healthy are the animals? Is the mother bred back? Has the baby developed socially (able to move amongst the other herd animals independently)? Personal observation and wise judgment is needed to determine the optimum time, or an appropriate age. The natural window for weaning a foal occurs between three to five months of age. When a foal enters the six-month of life, a persistent personality is formed and weaning becomes more difficult.

Most often the caregiver is reluctant to start the weaning process because of the undesirable symptoms that occur when using the abrupt separation method. The constant heart wrenching whinnying is very disturbing for a passionate caregiver. Pacing the fence lines or stall weaving, and cribbing are stress related symptoms that often lead to habitual problems. Separation anxiety can lead to self-inflicted injuries and/or even result in death. Separation is stressful and not natural! The animals are being forced to stop the nursing process and to break the mare/foal bond cold turkey.

EZEE WEAN is a more natural method. With appropriate timing, proper preparation, a healthy diet, and applying an EZEE WEAN halter or strap simplifies weaning a foal. The product allows the animals to remain together and eliminates the separation anxiety. It functions on the principal theory of comfort and discomfort. This same theory is used every time we move a horse, our touch during play and in training sessions. Each animal has it's own level of comfort and discomfort. When using EZEE WEAN, mother determines how quickly the weaning process will come to a halt. Remember, mother always gives her baby fair warning such as, ringing of her tail, pinned ears, moving sideways, stomping her hind foot, and when she has reached her limit she finally bits the baby in the butt. Typically, mother will not intentionally kick to injure her own baby. If a mare exhibits such a mean spirit, she should not be bred back. The process generally takes between four to six weeks, depending on the levels of tolerance, the persistent personality of the baby, and the length of time for the mare's bag to dry up.
